The Late Election.—The Governor's View.

On yesterday morning the following gentlemen, Magistrates elect in Davidson county applied to the Secretary of State for their commissions preparatory to entering upon the duties of their office: M. W. Thompson, for District number one; J. K. Spain, for District number two; J. T. Elliott, for District number three; J. G. Bailey, for District number four; J. T. Elliott, for District number five. Several other officers elect applied for commissions also. On stating their names to the Secretary he informed them that he had filled up the commissions the day previous, but had just received an order from Governor Brownlow not to sign any more commissions for persons elected at the Saturday election for the present. The Governor's reason for taking this step is, that he has received and is receiving abundant proof that there was a general disregard and nullification of the Franchise Law, and that the issuing of certificates of registration was done in flagrant violation of the law. Davidson county, for example, in which several thousand persons were disqualified by the Franchise Law, had registered some 10,000 voters, who were notoriously wrong and illegal. Williamson county had registered some 2,400 voters, when it was equally notorious that there were hardly one-fifth that many legal voters there. So far as returns have been received, it was evident that the officers of registration had issued certificates in a very loose manner, and that the Franchise Law had been treated with studied contempt. Governor Brownlow holds that the Franchise Law is on the statute book and unrepented, it is his duty to see that it is faithfully executed. Whatever his personal feelings may be, he is not permitted by the Constitution to use any discretion in the matter. He is under oath to execute all the laws faithfully. The Franchise Act is a law of the State, and it is the law which must control and regulate elections, otherwise there can be no election. An observance of all the requirements of the Franchise Law is necessary to constitute a valid election. Clerks have no more right to issue certificates without proof, and to persons disfranchised by law, than they have to issue certificates to minors, women or unqualified foreigners. The Governor has this interesting question under consideration, and is restrained by conscientious motives from issuing any commissions to judicial officers elected on Saturday last. It may be remarked here that the Governor does not give commissions to sheriffs, constables or clerks, the County Court having control over that class of officers, he commissions judicial officers only.

The above article is from the editorial columns of the Brownlow organ of the State, the Nashville Press and Times. It is very probable that the editor of the Press and Times was unaware of the fact, at the time he wrote the article, that Gov. Brownlow had closed the registration office in this county weeks before the election came off, or he would not thus convict the Governor of the State of Tennessee of being a willful breaker of the law.

Governor Brownlow holds that as the franchise law is on the Statute Book, and unrepented it is his official duty to see that it is faithfully executed," so says the Press and Times. Why, then, did he authorize the registration clerk of the County of Hardeman to issue no more certificates? By so doing did he not of his own nullify that law?

"He (Brownlow) is not permitted by the Constitution to use any discretion in the matter." So says the Press and Times. Why then did he presume to set that "matter," the law, aside in the County of Hardeman?

"He (Brownlow) is under oath to execute all the laws faithfully." So says the Press and Times. Then why did he violate his oath and suspend the registration of voters under the law in the County of Hardeman?

"The franchise act is a law of the State, and it is the law which must control and regulate elections. OTHERWISE THERE CAN BE NO ELECTION!" So says the Press and Times. Just as true as gospel. Mr. Rev. Parnassius Governor Brownlow had no right to interfere with the election in Hardeman county. It was his sole province to see that the law was executed, and not violated. We want the Press and Times to publish this. Will it do it? For it looks very much like W. G. Brownlow had himself "treated the franchise law with studied contempt" and we want the Press and Times to show him the picture.

The Nashville Press and Times is heavy on heads, for instance:

"PLOT TO TAKE GOVERNOR BROWNLOW'S LIFE."

He Is Warned of His Danger

Justice on the Track of the Conspirators.

"The following startling telegram was received by the Governor on yesterday (7th). It shows the malignity with which he is hated by the rebels, and gives an additional confirmation of the correctness of his estimate of the political situation."

GREENADA, Miss, March 6, 1866.

To His Excellency, Governor Brownlow:

Be aware! A plot for your assassination has been entered into by parties living in this State. I am on the track.

W. R. H. Hester,

Captain 38th U. S. C. I.,

Commanding Station of Greenada, Miss.

To all of which we would say "Beware" of believing any such nonsense. What has Mississippians to do with Governor Brownlow? What could be gained by them in such a foolish undertaking, even if successfully carried out? Don't accuse innocent people of fostering such hellish designs. We don't believe a word of the dispatch, for the simple reason that we cannot entertain the idea that there is a "rebel" foolish enough to attempt to remedy the evils that surround us by taking Governor Brownlow's life. Such a step would bring us no good, but much evil.

"Over The Roads."

Last Thursday evening, one week ago, we left the depot of the M. C. R. R. at this place on a trip to the Sunny South. At 12 o'clock the whistle sounded and we were on the way. In one hour and twenty minutes we reached the Junction, where we remained but a few moments ere the journey was resumed. Soon we reached Lamar, or what is left of it; then Holly Springs, then Oxford, then Water Valley. At the latter place twenty minutes were given the passengers to take supper. Here the M. C. R. R. Company is erecting suitable repair and machine shops. Formerly, all work for the road was done at Holly Springs, but the shops that used to employ so many skilled workmen in that place were burned during the war, and as Water Valley is a more central location, was therefore selected as the site for the shops. This will infuse new life, as it were, into the citizens of the latter place and add largely to its mechanical population. Supper over, the whistle again sounded, and the old iron horse was making rapid strides on his southward course, and as farm house and village, field and wood were in quick succession passed, the gleam of his fiery eye seemed to make night's blinding blackness to created shapes conform. On we went, past Grenada, Weona, and a dozen other stations, and reached Canton, the southern terminus of the road, at day-light. Here we changed cars and bid adieu to conductor Calhoun and his tireless steed. Soon, Fred, Wang, of the New Orleans, Jackson and Great Northern, R. R., gave the signal and the journey was resumed. On we went to Calhoun, past Calhoun to Madison, beyond Madison to Tangaloa, and then "brought up" at Jackson for breakfast, and oh, such a breakfast! Good Lord deliver us from any more of the same kind.

"All aboard," sang out the attentive and gentlemanly conductor, at the expiration of the twenty minutes allowed the hungry passengers to appease their appetites, and again we were in motion. In rapid succession we passed Byram, Terry, Crystal Springs, Hazlehurst, Bahala, Brookhaven, Bouge Chitto, Summit and then halted at Magnolia for dinner. Magnolia is a thriving place, situated in a healthy region, 95 miles from New Orleans and 110 miles from Canton, and is surrounded by the finest pine forest in the South. Here we partook of a splendid repast, had ample time to masticate and enjoyed the many good things prepared by "mine host" of the Magnolia Hotel, and hereby tender him our sincere thanks for contributing so much to our physical condition. "All aboard" was again shouted by Major Wang, and, as by magic, we were being hurried along toward the Crescent City at the rate of 30 miles per hour. Soon we reached Oxyk, then Tangipahoa, then Amite, then Tickfaw, then Pouchatoula, all of which are flourishing villages wherein is betokened much improvement and progress. Just at sunset we reached the trestlework at Manchac, and as we passed over the draw-bridge had a splendid view of the beautiful body of water which extends as far as the eye can see to the west, and with a sensation of pleasure noted the many sailing crafts that held and there dotted its glassy surface and told of the traffic carried on between the hardy fisherman who claim its bosom as their home and the tens of thousands of hungry mouths that are smacked over the delicacies taken from its brackish depths. Leaving Manchac the next station reached was Frenier, the next Kenner, which is only ten miles from the city, and from this place can be seen the reflection of the myriad of gas burners which render the streets of New Orleans as safe to the pedestrian as the noon-day sun. We reached the depot of the N. O. & G. N. R. R. at the foot of Calhoun street, precisely at 3 o'clock P. M. on Friday evening, having left Bolivar the day previous at 12 M., thus making the distance of four hundred and twenty miles in thirty hours and thirty minutes.

New Orleans, a stranger, especially one from this latitude, presents a novel sight at this season of the year. One is almost dumbfounded at the many strange scenes around him; the towering buildings, the noisy wagons, carts and drays, the densely thronged streets and the thousand and one characteristics that go to make up the general pell-mell of a great city. Yet, the strangest sight of all is that presented by old dame nature—the trees, the ornamental shrubbery and green swards, all clothed in a verdant freshness that would do honor to the May day queen of Hardeman county.

Before leaving for home we visited the Confederate Burying Ground, and could not fail to accord to the ladies of New Orleans that for devotion and consistency they had no superiors, for, be it understood, all that could be done for suffering humanity was done by them in the various hospitals before and after the surrender of the city, and now they plant flowers and decorate with emblematic wreaths, the graves of the forgotten, yet, in many instances, unknown dead, who fell in a common cause. All honor to the peerless women of New Orleans.

In the Catholic cemetery rests the mortal remains of the immortal Albert Sydney Johnston, and above them is a plan unpretending tomb, yet, it is sufficient, for it's the tomb of him whose memory will never fade from the minds of men as long as heroes are cherished or manhood esteemed.

On Sunday evening, a sight but seldom, if ever witnessed before in New Orleans, was presented on Canal street, it being occasioned by the announcements which appeared in all the morning papers that the mortal remains of Capt. John F. Gruber, who had been cruelly assassinated on St. Charles street on the Friday night previous, would be escorted to their last resting place by the members of the masonic and odd-fellow lodges and the entire fire department. It was estimated that at least forty thousand persons were on the street at the time the procession moved from the Clay monument. Capt. Gruber was a soldier in the army of Virginia, and was highly esteemed by all who knew him, as the great demonstration plainly shows. The assassin has been arrested, and will no doubt receive his just deserts.

Business is very brisk in the city, yet there is a dread of a pestilence coming. Many of the oldest citizens believe that the cholera will make its appearance there at no distant day. "Indeed," said a gentleman to us, and who has been a resident of New Orleans for eighteen years, "if we escape the cholera this year, it will be a miracle."

By military order, quarantine was established below the city on last Saturday, yet, it is feared, and on good grounds too, that it is but a poor guarantee against the dreadful malarial which it is intended to prevent from gaining a lodgement in the overstocked tenements of New Orleans. All vessels that touch at points where the cholera is raging, are detained at the quarantine grounds below the city for the space of ten days, which, pointedly speaking, amounts to nothing, for it is a well known fact that in many cases cholera will not develop itself in less than fifteen or twenty days. As the disease is raging at Havana, and vessels are continually arriving from that place, great anxiety is manifested on the part of prudential citizens, as it is a notorious fact that at least two-thirds of the present population of New Orleans is composed of unacclimated persons, and the city is only in a moderate state of cleanliness, while around the suburbs an intolerable stench prevails. Ten cases of cholera in New Orleans would be the signal for a general stampede, the like of which was never seen.

While passing through Mississippi, we conversed freely with gentlemen from almost every part of the State, and from the information received, are of the opinion that not one half of the amount of land will be planted in cotton this year that was anticipated would be done. But little cotton will be raised in Louisiana or Texas, and it is conceded that the supply from this year's crop will fall far short of what was brought to market as last year's growth. In some localities the negroes seem to be doing well, in others but very poorly, and to take the freedom of Mississippi as a class, they are an unprofitable set, from what we could learn, and hard to manage.

On our way home, we fell in with Capt. Frost, of the M. C. R. R., who told us that in a few days he would have ten more new passenger cars and three sleeping cars on the road for the accommodation of those passing over the road. Both the N. O. & G. N. and M. C. railroads are in fine order from Bolivar to New Orleans. In about one month the break in the road from here to Jackson, Tenn., will be repaired, and then through business will commence. We hope the officers of the above roads will act conjointly in their efforts to secure and promote a healthy growth to a strictly Southern trade.

Important Order from Gen. Grant.

The following circular letter to commanders of military departments was issued by Gen. Grant on the 18th ult.:

HEADQUARTERS ARMY OF THE U. S.,
WASHINGTON, Feb. 17, 1866.

You will send to these headquarters, as soon as practicable, and from time to time hereafter, such copies of newspapers published in your departments, as contain sentiments of disloyalty to the Government, or of its branches, and state whether any such paper is habitual in its utterances of such sentiments. The persistent publication of articles calculated to keep up a hostility of feeling between the people of different sections of the country, cannot be tolerated. This information is called for, with a view to their suppression, which will be done from these headquarters only. By command of Lieut. Gen. Grant. (Signed) T. S. Bowers, A. A. Gen.

"The persistent publication of articles calculated to keep up a hostility of feeling between the people of different sections of the country, cannot be tolerated" says Gen. Grant. Wonder how the Chicago Times and other Abolition journals of the North like this little morsel? It seems that in this case "what's sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander; does it not, Mr. Tribune? It is natural to suppose that you will willingly obey the order and without any reluctance whatever swallow a dose of the same medicine that you so persistently prescribed for the "disloyal" of the South. How does our East Tennessee "Raw Head and Bloody Bones" like the order? We should like to see the Governor's retaliation of the order in his loyal Knoxville Whig.

From The Gallatin Examiner.

The Tennessee Life Stock Insurance Company.—We have previously alluded to the opening of the "Home" office of this company at this place, and, since it is destined to extend its operations to every portion of the State and South, it is but due to it that a more extended notice should be made of its plan and objects. It is working under an act of incorporation from the Legislature, with a capital stock of $50,000, and under the management of the following officers:—Chas. M. Parker, late Clerk and Master of the Chancery Court, President; Joseph M. Robb, Vice President; J. H. Conklin, Secretary; Jno. W. Head, former Attorney General of the State, General Agent. The company have the right to increase its capital to $500,000, as its extension may render necessary. The organization is a sound one, and a thorough system of detection has been devised by which the operations of the company can be rendered almost absolutely certain. It proposes to accomplish by systematic organization that which cannot be done by individual exertion, and, if it fails, then to indemnify the assured and loser with the cash. All human experience testifies to the superiority of organized efforts over single individual enterprise and this company is well calculated to fill a want in society long desired, and to occupy the same relation to the stock interests of the country which Fire and Life companies do to their respective objects. We do not possess any means of stating with accuracy, the amount of annual loss of stock by theft, but it is undoubtedly heavy. The docket of our courts, which only exhibit the cases which have been detected, alone comprise a large aggregate of crime, while the number of cases which wholly escape detection are innumerable.

We will not, at present mention the plan by which the company accomplishes its objects. It is sufficient to state that they are cunningly devised, but, if they fail, the company plunks up the money to the party assured. This is all the public wants. If the animal stolen is not returned within thirty days, the loss is made good. We may, however, state that all stock insured is branded on the right fore foot, and that when sold or transferred the buyer obtains a certificate of transfer from the former owner. Any proposed sale of a branded horse without proper papers at once arouses suspicion and leads to detection. There are other features, in the narrative, both of a novel and a public interest, which it is not necessary to allude to. The public may rest assured that the company is in proper hands, who are determined to make it a permanent institution. Here, stealing is a profession as old as the Patriarchs, and civilization has yet found no corrective equal to its suppression. The aim of this company is to combat it, and when it fails, to indemnify the loser. We commend the subject to the attention of our brethren of the Tennessee press, in order that they may bring it before their readers. They can assure them that the institution is under competent management, with means to meet every demand upon it.

"The rich," said a poor Jew, "eat venison because it is dear; I eat mutton because it is cheap."

The Spring Term of this institution will commence on THURSDAY, the 1st day of MARCH, 1866. The prices of tuition will be as follows:—
Primary Department, $15 00
Higher English Department, $25 00
Classical and Mathematical Department, $35 00
Incidental Fee, 1 00

The Spring Session will begin on Monday, the 1st day of March, and will continue until the close of the session, and no detention will be made except in cases of protracted sickness. A rigid discipline will be enforced, and students will be required to conduct themselves with gentlemanly demeanor, both in and out of school.
